Assumptions Used in Arriving at Fiscal Estimate

This bill creates higher penalties for persons convicted of resisting or obstructing a peace officer while the officer is acting in his or her official capacity if the person harms the officer. Under this bill, if a person causes bodily harm to an officer while resisting or obstructing the officer, he or she is guilty of a Class I felony. A person who causes substantial bodily harm to an officer while resisting or obstructing the officer is guilty of a Class H felony.

It is not known how many offenses will be charged or how many more contested court proceedings will be required because of the increased penalties under this bill. Felony proceedings generally require additional court appearances and more court hearings than misdemeanors. Additional court proceedings require judge, court reporter, court staff and juror time. These costs are borne by the state and the county. An accurate estimate of the increased costs is impossible with existing data.
